Jim Denning, a Yerington resident addressed a problem that has been going on for about five years at 20 Palomino Dr. and there seems to be some confusion on what entities are involved and what they can and can't do (referring to the District Attorney, the Sheriff, Code Enforcement and the County Commissioners). He suggested that these four entities get together or form a committee to raise a plan to deal with these people because there is ongoing illegal activity and it's County-wide. Mr. Denning stated this community is getting a really bad reputation, and he has heard from people in Reno, Incline Village, and other areas that don't want to come to our County because it is drug infested. He noted the situation is getting worse again because the guy gets out of jail and within a half hour there is traffic, people walking around the area and vagrants staying on the property. There has been a fire there and he believes the property has been red tagged so nobody is supposed to be living there except the owners, one of which is a prominent dealer. He would like the Commissioners to get together and find a solution before it gets out of hand.

Eric Allison, owner of Sunrise Ranch, is concerned with revenue loss in the community, unsafe driving, disrespecting private property, wildlife deaths and large amounts of litter, due to the excess of traffic that is diverted to Miller/Aiazzi and Pete Hendricks roads instead of being routed through town. There are signs that large trucks are not allowed on the road, but they still use the road. The rumble strips and flashing lights have not helped.

David Sceirine also has complaints about Miller Lane. He would like to add that he has had to fix the fence multiple times, and has been run off the road more than once. There is just too much traffic on this road. He would like a flashing stop light to be installed because drunks go
